

MARKETWATCH

WINTER MARKET SEASON IS HERE!

Winter markets are springing up all over Iowa and are great places to get local meats, cheeses, baked goods, and other delights all year long. Many winter markets also feature local crafts and art too, making them a perfect destination for holiday gift shopping. Note that size, vendors and offerings may vary at each market, but each market keeps the spirit of eating local alive, even as the fields rest for winter.

These are some of the winter markets in Central/Eastern Iowa. Markets in italics are sponsored by the Churches Center for Landed People and proceeds of these sales go to Harvest of Hope, an emergency fund for small farmers in need (read more at www.EdibleIowa.com, winter, 2007 issue). For more information on these sales, contact Market Master James Earles at 563.588.2935 or at www.CCLPMidwest.org.

Other market masters are noted accordingly. Times and locations may change, so always call ahead.
